

Anti-Slavery and Human Trafficking Statement

5th January 2026

Our Commitment

CherryField is fully committed to preventing modern slavery and human trafficking within our corporate operations and supply chains. We maintain a strict, zero-tolerance policy against all forms of forced labour, servitude, and human exploitation.

To reinforce this stance, we continuously update our internal policies, strengthen our operational procedures, and ensure our working practices actively combat these global issues.

Our Global Operations & Supply Chain

As a global apparel provider with international headquarters, CherryField operates a complex, widespread supply chain. To ensure ethical standards are maintained at every level, we actively partner with leading global compliance firms. This collaborative approach allows us to:

Monitor and Audit: Closely oversee supplier performance and trace supply chain origins.

Manage Risk: Implement effective systems and controls to proactively mitigate the risk of forced labour.

Source Ethically: Conduct all business dealings with the highest levels of integrity and transparency.

Supplier Compliance & Expectations

We hold our suppliers, contractors, and business partners to the same rigorous ethical standards we demand of ourselves. CherryField has established a robust supply chain compliance program designed to ensure alignment with our core values.

We have formally communicated our expectations to all suppliers, requiring them to diligently monitor their own supply chains and report any potential risks or violations.
